2016 National Audience Study
In Fall, 2016 the Art House Convergence partnered with Avenue ISR to conduct the fourth National Audience Study to develop a deep understanding of art house patron profiles, attitudes and beliefs.

More than 16,000 art house attendees from across the United States and Canada participated in this landmark study.

Special thanks to the Bryn Mawr Film Institute and Juliet Goodfriend for providing the initial vision and leadership for this work.
Thank you to the 38 North American art houses, film festivals and film societies who participated in the 2016 National Audience Study!

16,412 U.S. and Canadian attendees of Art House movies (theaters, film festivals, film societies, other venues showing art house content)

- Completed a 3rd party web-based survey
- Responded to invitations issued through email, social media, web site posting, press release, etc.

Implications

1. Likely a more actively engaged subset of the entire art house audience
2. General results may not apply to each art house theater or organization because of local community character
3. Because different organizations participate each year, trending results are not perfectly apples to apples
4. Still, a large and diverse group of art house patrons – a meaningful ‘voice of the customer’ to use for decision-making
Patron Age

- The mix of theaters (and therefore respondents) changes in each year of the National Audience Study.
- This year’s audience is very similar in terms of age to that surveyed in 2013:
  - 1/3 of respondents are over the age of 65
  - About half are between 35 and 64
  - One in six are younger than 35

The National Audience Study has always had a strong female voice. As in recent years, the percentage of respondents who are female is roughly two-thirds.
The average respondent reports seeing 34 movies per year, up from under 26 per year in 2013.

Any given art house attendee is choosing to see just under half of his or her movies at a favored art house.

APPENDIX
1. Audience Profiles
A Cluster Analysis separates or partitions respondents based on how they respond to a set of variables.

We used a K-means Cluster Analysis on rating questions such as:
- “I seek out movies that push the limits of the cinema art form”
- “I generally stay after the film until the last credits have run”
- “I was part of a film club or society in school”

Four interesting groups of art house patrons emerged, covering about 75% of all respondents: Art House Loyalists, Movie Junkies, Rising Cinephiles and the Periphery.

- Art House Loyalists, 21.1%
- Movie Junkies, 10.2%
- Rising Cinephiles, 14.2%
- The Base, 27.7%
- Unassigned, 26.7%
Art House Loyalists are passionate about art house movie theaters and also about movies. They are members, supporters and champions.

Movie Junkies are people for whom film is an integral part of life. They are, and always have been, voracious, engaged and ready to grow through the art of film.

Attitudes & Behaviors

- They see a movie a week
- 62% studied Film in school (compared to the overall of 12%)
- Very likely to see movies out of the realm of mainstream
- They view cinema as art and actively look for movies that stretch its boundaries
- Were once aspiring writers or directors
- Very knowledgeable about the history of film

Those who attend film festivals purchase more tickets to movies – this is true across every profile group (Art House Loyalists, Movie Junkies, etc.)

This is important regardless of which is causing the other result
- Promoting, supporting and hosting film festivals may broaden the tastes of audiences
- It also may connect with an established core art house audience

Patrons were given the following prompt regarding the formats used to screen movies:

- Film – the traditional analogue format, available most commonly in 16 mm, 35 mm or 70 mm format
- DCP – the most common digital format used today
The majority of respondents have no preference or are unsure of which format they view in a movie theater.

In general, do you have a preference for which format you watch in the movie theater?

- Film: 16%
- DCP: 6%
- No preference or not sure: 78%

- “Film seems stronger, more genuine -- DCP feels like turning on my TV at home. I don't like it.”
- “It is thrilling to see it in the actual film it was intended to be shown with”
- “I am generally NOT conscious of a film's original format, but like to see films in their original formats whenever possible -- advertising this is critical”
Among those who prefer film, about half (47%) seek out screenings in film. This represents about 8% of the total audience. In separate analysis, we found that only 1% of those with a preference format would refuse to see films in the less-favored format.

How does the format in which a film was originally shown affect your decision of which screenings to see?

- Conscious of original exhibition format, including gauge (35mm, 70mm, 16mm, etc.) and seek...

- No preference or not sure: Overall 54%, Movie Junkies 54%, Rising Cinephiles 75%
3. Communications
Overall social media participation has remained relatively flat. Though Facebook and LinkedIn remain the most popular, the percentage of respondents who use Instagram has risen 14% over three years.
While participation in social media remains strong, art houses (and others) are not seeing an increase in social media engagement in social media.

Most interactions have declined slightly since 2014.

Which, if any, interactions have you had with [SPONSORING ORGANIZATION] on social media?

- Read posts made by [SPONSORING ORGANIZATION]: 2014 - 45%, 2015 - 40%, 2016 - 38%
- Friend/Follow/Etc. on social media: 2014 - 39%, 2015 - 39%, 2016 - 33%
- “Liked” or responded to posts made by [SPONSORING ORGANIZATION]: 2014 - 31%, 2015 - 28%, 2016 - 28%

Building Audience: Donors with Community in Mind

What caused you to begin providing financial support to this organization? [SPONSORING THEATRE]?

- Audiences appreciate diverse perspectives
  - “It shows so many independent, high quality films and represents diverse perspectives. Both are enriching personally and for the community.” – Salt Lake Film Society, Salt Lake City, UT

- Patrons understand the impact that art houses have on their communities
  - “I appreciate having a theatre that provides the high quality of films and special events relatively close to home. I know that I would be missing meaningful experiences if the Cinema Arts Center were to close.” – Cinema Arts Centre, Huntington, NY
  - “They enrich the community---to read a review in the NYTimes of a movie that’s playing there and be able to go to downtown and see it that same day is a treasure that far too few people here take advantage of...” – FilmScene, Iowa City, IA

- It’s more than just a place to see a movie
  - “I love The Colonial Theatre. I grew up going there. The people are so nice, the theatre looks amazing. It helped Phoenixville rise from the ashes!” – The Colonial Theater, Phoenixville, PA
  - “It is an essential part of the neighborhood. Brings culture and community and drives economic benefits for local businesses.” – Coolidge Corner Theater, Brookline, MA

“Upon deciding whether to move to Bellingham, I searched its proximity to independent movie theaters and that helped me decide this was the type of town I’d want to move to.” – Pickford Film Center, Bellingham, WA
5. Implications
Executive Summary of Findings

1. The Art House movie community is strong. Organizations continue to do a good job of cultivating new audiences and delivering excellent, transcendent experiences.

2. There are a number of profiles among the art house audience:
   a) Art House Loyalists are passionate supporters of the institution
   b) Movie Junkies are former film students and aspiring directors who care about the cinema art
   c) Rising Cinephiles care about film but they are less knowledgeable than the Movie Junkies; they seek to broaden their horizons
   d) The Base are loyal to the art house but are less likely to be frequent moviegoers; they seek a nice time

3. Content primarily drives the decision to attend and return

4. Different films can play different roles for the organization
   a) Some broaden the audience to reach The Base and beyond
   b) Some keep the avid moviegoer and patron engaged, and they are critical

5. Film Festivals are related to accelerated film viewership

6. Although screening in digital will not necessarily drive people away, screening in film is a draw to some of the most important audiences

7. Although a variety of print, digital and other communications are necessary to reach all audiences, the weekly email is still primary
