Goals of Session

- Review actionable insights on operations, patron engagement and the general State of the Art House from three data sets –
  - DataArts analysis of art houses and film festivals relative to other arts organizations
  - Theater Operations Survey of 101 leaders from art houses and other film organizations
  - National Audience Survey of more than 13,000 art house patrons
- Discuss implications of what this means for the whole art house sector as well as individual leaders
- Have a Q&A / Discussion with session participants
- Introduce some exciting Next Steps for 2018 and beyond
- Express gratitude to the art house leaders who have made all of this possible

Conclusions & Implications

- Art house theaters are generally in a strong position
  - Attendance and revenue are trending upward for the majority
  - Operating margins are generally higher than comparable arts organizations
  - Patrons are engaged and are increasing their attendance
  - Theaters are winning over younger patrons
  - Patrons understand the value that art houses have for them and their communities

Potential Action Items

1. Tell this story of impact
   - Media release in local community
   - Develop a fact sheet or brochure of summary results to share with members, supporters and community members
   - Present to community groups and local government to enhance local support

2. Further explore cooperative purchasing
I. Art House Theaters Are Strong and Vital

II. Go Deeper With Current Patrons

III. Promote Both Movies and Moviegoing

IV. Selectively Reach Out to New Audiences
“Depending on which study you believe, and what industry you’re in, acquiring a new customer is anywhere from five to 25 times more expensive than retaining an existing one.” Amy Gallo, Harvard Business Review 2014

- Therefore, if you are seeking growth in revenue or margin, the first and best place to look is with your existing patrons
- Generically, there might be four approaches to going deeper with current patrons
  - Keep them delighted with a great audience experience
  - Suggest new occasions to bring them in the door
  - Enhance “average ring” with sales of concessions and merchandise
  - Transition ticket buyers to members, members to donors, etc.
- Any one of these might be its own presentation topic, so this section features some insights that may suggest some approaches for greater patron engagement
Patrons are generally very happy with the art house experience.

- Out of 21 attributes measured, there were only six areas where there seems to be room for improvement.

Note: In 2016, organizations were invited to complete the CDP via our Short Form for the Americans for the Arts AEP5 Study. The Short Form only asks for total earned revenue, which is reflected in the “Other Earned Revenue” category. For all three film groups, nearly 20% of organizations filled out this Short Form version of the survey which is the reason for the inflated “other” revenue category.
Art house cinemas and film festivals may have additional revenue opportunities.

- Other types of performing arts organizations are able to generate a much bigger share of overall revenue from Membership/Subscriptions and Individual and Board Contributions, relative to art house cinemas and film festivals.

Conclusions & Implications

- Art houses need to both market movies (individual titles) and moviegoing (their art house experience) to woo audiences away from the comforts of home
  - Overall marketing spending trails other performing arts organizations
  - Digital communications plus a handful of other approaches (e.g. printed program guides) are thought to be most effective
  - In addition to specific titles, art houses should motivate audiences with unique programming and promotions

1. Consolidate some marketing activity
2. Potentially rebalance social media activity and spending
3. Confer with colleagues and review other art house schedules for unique programming and event ideas
4. Potentially expand use of MoviePass

Patrons 53 years and older make up a considerable majority of members and financial contributors.

By implication, any efforts to cultivate younger audiences should not come at the expense of these current supporters.

National Audience Survey

Older patrons are critical today.

Programming for youths and families
- “For the past 8 years we have run SUMMER MORNING MATINEES; kids' movies of the past, Totoro, The Goonies, Dark Crystal. 3 showings a week all summer long. 11AM. Sponsored by local businesses. Admission $2.” – Bijou Theater
- “Science on Screen” – many mentions, and obviously this appeals to many audiences

Programming for fans of more exotic genres
- “David Lynch Series, Genre Offerings, New Wave Membership for audience under 35.” – Northwest Film Center
- “Wednesday Signature Series - rotating series of 7 programs on Wednesday nights. 4 are partnerships with foreign embassies in DC” – Avalon Theatre
- “Partnering with a cult film series looking for a screening venue” – The Cary Theater
- “REEL SCIENCE: A collaboration between the Digital Gym Cinema, Film Geeks SD, the San Diego Natural History Museum and scientists in the San Diego community for a month-long series that explores scientific themes in cult cinema and provides audiences with the science behind the fiction.” – Media Arts Center San Diego

Other approaches to build younger audiences
- “Dedicated and ongoing marketing in specific publication and through social media intended to reach diverse audiences on a constant basis, not just when we think we have a specific film that will be appealing to that specific audience.” – Belcourt Theatre
- Adventure film festivals (fly fishing, rock climbing, surfing, etc.) - Frontier

Q13: Please share with us short descriptions of special events, film series or other programs that your organization held within the past year that you consider very successful. (reaching new audiences; generating revenue)

What might you do with this information?

- While prioritizing current patrons, art houses can cultivate new and younger audiences
  - Older patrons make up the lion’s share of current audiences, members & donors
  - Older Gen X “empty nesters” may be a very attractive audience to target
  - Younger audiences seek different genres and movies that “push the limits;” meeting their needs without undermining current audiences requires care
  - Reaching younger audiences will require diversified social media strength

1. Think about Gen X, not just Millennials, in targeting “younger audiences”
2. Identify separate screens, day parts, film series and events to target these audiences
3. Work to better understand the appetite for “the Classics” – poll patrons?
4. Seek community partners with good relationships with younger audiences
NEXT STEPS
• In August 2018, Art House Convergence and DataArts were awarded an NEA Artworks Research grant to better study Art House members.

• NEA Research grants are extremely competitive, with only 20-25% of proposals being accepted.

• Goals of the project include:
  • Collecting additional data from Art House members
  • Making research more accessible (e.g. through interactive web reporting)
  • Demonstrating economic and social impact on communities

You will hear more about this project during and after this conference, with data collection through mid-2018. We encourage you to contribute your data!
